

CM and MM lead the way with 10 wins

SR brings in 9 and finds himself in a very familiar spot

Effective date: 2022-09-27

It was moving day for CM and MM who both know far too well how important it is to perform well in the early part of the season. In a week that saw a good number of upsets and some teams that underperformed CM and MM used their years of picking expertise to put together a solid 10-6 record to take top honors and slide them up a couple spots on the big board. Well played you two! Another set of initials that also deserves recognition was SR who hit 9 wins and edged out NF to take over sole possession of the top spot. Now, I know what you're thinking "Mr. President, isn't it far too early to be caught up in standings outlooks?" And to that my response would be "Fake News!"... Yes, it is early days, but there is something to be said about a solid start. SR has had that and CM and MM have entered the chatroom here in week 3. The best part is that week 4 is not but a few days away and headlines have short term memory loss!

Speaking of short term memory, DR has never seen a loner he doesn't like and regardless of outcome in previous weeks he always jumps right back on the horse. Oh how we love a confident contender! DR again reaps the fruits of his labor as MIA took down BUF in a tightly contested match. Congrats DR! MS and PM weren't so fortunate as none of their picks were able to produce any fruit as MS lost with WAS and PM with NE and NYJ. Although you weren't successful we always appreciate the drama. Better luck next time.

Onward and upward to week 4. A clean slate welcomes all, now what will you make of it? See you all back here in a weeks time!

Your President,

LF
