

KS calls himself out on the message board and responds in a big way

Multiple members perform under the bright lights to spice things up in week 4

Effective date: 2022-10-04

Week 4 was a humbling reminder of just how quickly the tides can turn in the PFVCC. Just a short week ago there was a little more separation in the standings and one member took to the message board to voice his displeasure with the start that he had gotten off to.. So far. Fast forward 5 days and it seems like its 'so far' so good for that member KS, who put on a picking clinic going 14-2 on the week and vaulting himself into a 5-way tie for second and just a game back. An impressive statement and delivery, KS! Yes, KS had the loudest voice in week 4, but he wasn't the only one to have their voice heard- DP also had a great week at 12-4 and just behind him were BS, LF, CM and MM with 11 wins... A picking onslaught that deserves recognition all around! Honorable mention goes to NF who might have been overlooked due to the modest record of 10-6, but it proved to be enough to overtake SR for the top spot, which is where he sits all on his lonesome.. for now. With one month in the books, the heat is just beginning to be turned up. 9 members are within 4 games of each other and it seems like everyone is beginning to hit their stride. Who will keep up and who will fall off? Week 5 might have some answers.

Loner news was the quietest its been to this point in the season. Only two were highlighted on the board and unfortunately for MS and BS, neither were successful. MS lost in London with NO and BS lost with CAR who couldn't overtake ARZ. Tough takes, but don't let it deter you gents!

One month of football is now in the books and it's anyones game. I have a feeling that we are in for a rollercoaster of a season. Buckle up!!

Your President,

LF
