

NF and MM scorch the earth in week 4 with 13 wins

SS makes PFVCC history racking up another noteworthy milestone

Effective date: 2023-10-03

A month of football has now come and gone and along with that go the excuses of “shaking off the rust” for NFL teams and PFVCC pickers alike. By this point, it would be nice to say we have a good grasp on who's good and who's not, but its not always that easy...cough cough Cincinnati... At any rate, we find ourselves in the thick of a great race and one member finds himself back in the good graces of the penthouse landlord. The landlord is stringent and only has the patience for the best of the best setting foot inside the historic space. Last week KS and DP shared a week together, but as history goes, in the end the space is only big enough for one. This Tuesday morning NF picked up his keys which were taken from him for a short week but he returns and finds that he should've never left. What earned him his keys again was his performance as he and MM both blistered the pick board going 13-3 to lead the way. MM has earned the glance of the landlord but has yet to receive his keys, but that could change very soon. SS and BS had some great weeks of their own posting 12 wins as they both look to climb up the standings here in the early going. Well done to our weekly notables!!

Loner news was aplenty in week 4 as 6 games made the board. For sake of space and time I will cut to the chase... None were successful. We feel for you four... you know who you are.

Finally, Congratulations are in order as we point our attention to the winningest player in PFVCC history. Once again, SS ceases to amaze, as he eclipsed 6k wins this past week! Congratulations SS!! You should share on the message board how Many titles you have...

With that let's see who the penthouse landlord fancies in week 5!!

Your President,

LF
