

The MIP Wakes Up From Year Long Slumber

Did It Come Early? Or Has Membership Just Had a Case of the Early Season Woes?

Effective date: 2025-10-07

Last year we went week to week wondering if the MIP would ever come and it never did. Now, just 5 weeks in and membership is in a panic as the MIP seems to have come early, leaving everyone wondering if this could really be it... Uncharacteristically early, everyone is hoping that there are no MIP aftershocks in store. MM lead all pickers with 9 wins which was an impressive total compared to the MIPPED field. With that he climbs back into striking distance and can feel good about himself after a seemingly difficult week to predict. Well played MM. The week 5 penthouse check sees KS packing his stuff as his 5 wins were one shy of his now ex roommate, SS. He reluctantly returns his keys to the landlord, grab bars in hand, as he never got around to installing them in the master bath. He hopes to get another opportunity soon, but for now he must vacate, which leaves SS to enjoy the penthouse with some peace and quiet.

It was a successful week in the loner category, with 3 out of 4 picks landing in the win column. NF went 1 for 2 with TEN leading the charge against ARZ who literally dropped the ball on a seemingly winnable matchup. MM and DJ were the other victorious members as their picks of DEN and JAX elevated these two into loner glory here in a tough week 5. Phenomenal picking by you three!

Happy to turn the page, membership looks to get the bad taste out of their mouths in week 6. Be gone MIP!

Your President & Champ,

LF