

BS, NF & PM Get What They Needed With a Solid 12 Wins

LF & DP With 11 Of Their Own; Pressure Mounts At The Top

Effective date: 2025-11-18

Week 11 belonged to the field as The Penthouse couple of SS and KS spent their week preparing for the upcoming holidays. Although they still lead, the chasers made their presence known and whispers are making their rounds that maybe having two in the penthouse is causing more of a distraction than SS and KS are willing to admit. Whatever the case, the numbers speak for themselves as BS, NF and PM blistered the week 11 slate bringing in 12 wins and gaining 2 games on the standings. This couldn't have come at a better time as they each were looking for something to boost their confidence and get them locked in for the stretch drive. Also feeling confident after their performances, LF and DP's 11 wins had them each gaining a game. DP has a little more work to do but is on the right track and LF, who is hungry for another Penthouse visit, has shaved his deficit in half over the last 3 weeks. Great performances from those mentioned and it's exactly the type of drama you expect here in the PFVCC. One more notable that needs to be mentioned is CM who has sat in 2nd place since week 2 and is just waiting for his breakout week. He's had his opportunities but hasn't been able to tip the GOO in his favor, but he's leaning into the old adage that "pressure makes diamonds".

Four members logged loner picks this week and it was an even split. CM and DJ were on the wrong side of the ledger as their picks of TB & SEA couldn't get the job done. That left BS and PM to celebrate on their own as JAX & CAR carried them to success! Win or lose all deserve respect, and an extra tip of the cap to BS and PM!

KS and SS still lead but membership has come on strong and refuses to go quietly. Who will make noise in week 12?

Your President & Champ,

LF
